

Differences between Interactive Audit and existing degree audits:

1. Interactive audit's GPA vertical bar chart stops at a hundredth of a decimal point(3.61):

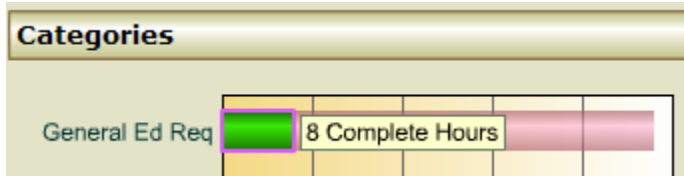

There is no rounding, it simply truncates the number. The body of the audit still shows the full GPA to the thousandth position (3.614):

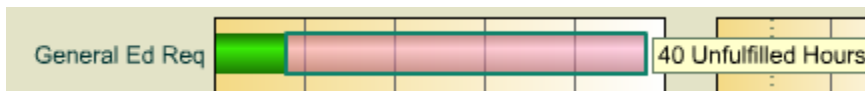

- 2-University overall hours and GPA are now shown in a pie chart:

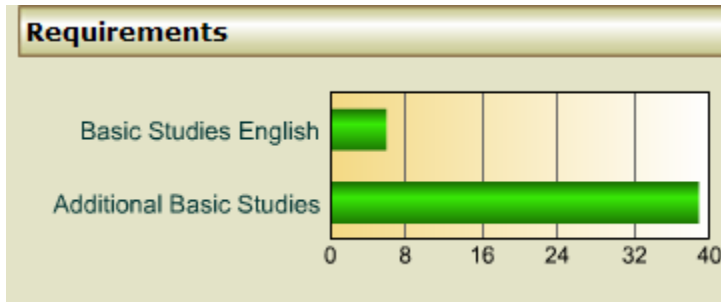

3- “General Education Requirements” is the umbrella term for either Basic Studies or University Studies. Click on the bar graph to see which one the student has. For University Studies, the bar graph hours may not add up because courses can be used more than once in some areas and because of the foreign language requirement changes. Since there is no tracking of total hours as in Basic Studies (39) the bar for total hours does not exist.

3- Basic Studies was organized years ago with English out of the “big picture” so the bar graph appears as two bars:

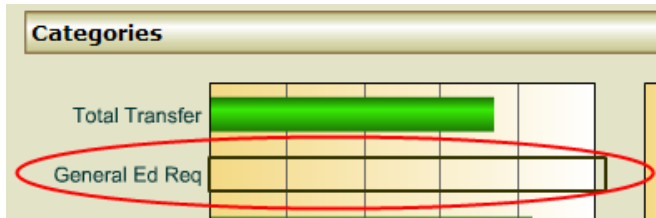

Clicking on “Additional Basic Studies” bar graph will show the remaining requirements:

We aren’t able to show a bar graph for the 39 required basic studies hours. It is still listed in the audit body.

5-AA waivers from Community Colleges will show complete down the audit text- however the "General Ed Req" bar graph does not know how to handle waivers and appears blank. Help desk ticket submitted to vendor to see if there is a fix. For now, refer to the body of the audit and the text "AA - Waived" will display.
