Program Overview

Conflict and cooperation are two overlapping, reoccurring themes in international politics. Indeed, we are constantly besieged by the daily news media with stories of regional or international discord, terrorism and issues of national security. When does war as a strategy replace diplomatic or trade sanctions? How is the very real incident of conflict resolved through international law and organizations? The goal of CMR 592, National Security and Conflict Management in Israel is to give students a solid understanding of the main theories and types of conflict plaguing the Middle East today, particularly Israel, as well as the way in which these conflicts are managed and resolved.
