

Publications

Scuba diving projects account for the largest proportion of peer-reviewed publications since 1995; 245 total publications (70 percent). This is not surprising, however, since most of the center's resources over the last eight years have been directed towards diving programs for reasons previously discussed.

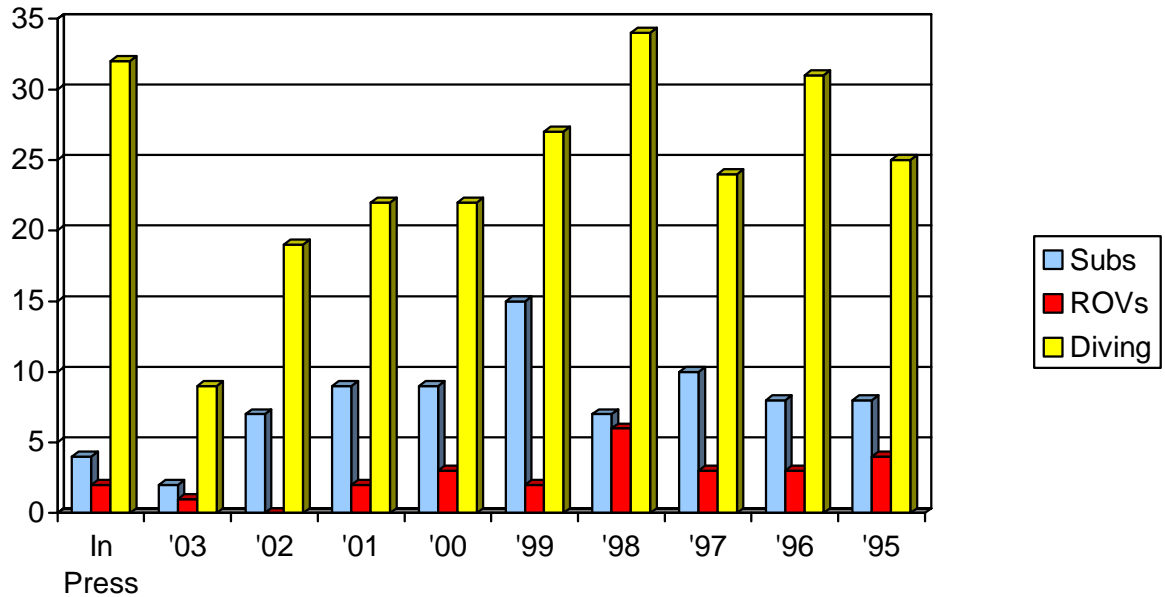

Figure. Peer-reviewed publications authored by scientists using particular systems.