A "C" (2.00) grade point average or better is required among all courses used to satisfy the ANT major, and a grade of "C" or better is required in each required ANT course counted toward the major. A "C" (2.00) grade point average is required among anthropology courses used to satisfy the below requirements.

Students contemplating a professional career in anthropology are urged to study a foreign language and acquire basic skills in computer science and statistics. Anthropology advisors may recommend additional courses in the sciences, humanities, or mathematics commensurate with individual career paths.

Requirements for Teacher Licensure in Social Studies: In addition to completing requirements for the major, anthropology majors seeking licensure in social studies must complete the Teacher Education Program requirements and a minimum of 21 collateral hours including HST 101, 102, 104, 201, 202, and PLS 101, and at least one course in each of the following areas: economics and geography.

For information on the Teacher Education Program admissions criteria and the courses required for licensure in North Carolina, see the Watson School of Education section of the 2009-2010 undergraduate catalogue. Students planning to pursue licensure should apply to the Watson School of Education as soon as admissions requirements are met (typically in the sophomore year) and plan their programs in regular consultation with their advisors. Teacher licensure requirements are established at the state level and may be changed by the state at any time.

Requirements for a Minor in Anthropology: 21 hours. ANT 206, 207, 210, and 12 additional hours at least 6 of which are at the 300-400 level. ANTL 207 may be taken as an elective but is not required. In selecting the courses to fulfill the minor requirements, students are strongly encouraged to consult with the anthropology faculty.
