I. PROCEDURES

a) Check-In Procedures:
Check-in will be Tuesday, July 11, 2017, from 2 to 3 p.m. in the lobby of the Honors House residence hall. During check-in, you will have the opportunity to become acquainted with the staff and familiar with the rules and procedures of the Young Writers Workshop. A daily itinerary will be presented to you and your parent(s) at this time. If you need directions to the UNCW campus, please visit www.uncw.edu/admissions/Directions.html

b) Residence Hall Procedures:
At check-in, you will receive your room key and linens. Please count your linens to be sure you have two sheets, pillow and case, two bath, two hand, and two face towels. If any item is missing, notify a staff person immediately so you will not be charged for that item at checkout. There will be a $5 charge per piece of missing linen (to be paid during checkout).

After you check in, any changes you feel are absolutely necessary (concerning your room location or roommate) can be discussed with the Young Writers Workshop coordinators on Tuesday, July 11. You may not change your room or exchange keys with anyone without the express approval of a coordinator (who must keep a written record of each room occupant).

The camp’s lights-out time is 10 p.m. You will need to rise each day at 7:30 a.m. and be ready to go to the cafeteria for breakfast by 8:15 a.m.

For checkout, parents should meet students between 11 a.m. and noon on Saturday, July 15, at the Honors House residence hall. Checkout will include loading luggage, returning room keys, and paying for any lost room keys, linen and/or deliberately damaged equipment. Students who have driven themselves to the camp must check out with a counselor before leaving campus.

c) Workshop Procedures:
All participants in the Young Writers Workshop will need to send a printed copy of at least one original piece of writing for workshop no later than Wednesday, June 28. The manuscript may be one short story, one essay, or three to five poems. The entire manuscript should be 10 pages or less, typed and double-spaced in a standard font (we prefer Times New Roman, 12 point). The Young Writers Workshop staff will make copies for all participants in the workshops. Please be sure your manuscript includes the participant’s full name. Also include the participant’s name in the Word document or PDF file name. E-mail manuscripts to youngwriterscamp@uncw.edu, or mail a hard copy to:
Students will be responsible for reading and critiquing each other’s work in a structured and supportive setting that will be overseen by Young Writers Workshop staff. Students should come prepared to discuss the manuscripts assigned each day. Students will be encouraged to revise their work based on the feedback received in the workshop. For more information about workshop procedure and etiquette, please see “Workshop FAQ,” also enclosed in this packet.

II. REGULATIONS

a) All UNCW Young Writers Workshop students will be under the supervision of the UNCW Young Writers Workshop coordinators and staff from check-in on Tuesday until checkout on Saturday, and the coordinators and staff will be responsible for each student’s well-being.

b) Students are expected to adhere to their itinerary without exception (except during cases of injury or illness). Students who do not adhere to the itinerary will receive a verbal warning. A second violation will result in a phone call to the student’s parents.

c) Any student who drives him/herself to the Young Writers Workshop will be issued a parking pass at check-in. Students will park their cars in a designated lot and will surrender their keys to the workshop coordinators at this time. For the duration of the camp period, no student will be allowed to leave campus without the supervision of the Young Writers Workshop staff.

d) Residence Hall Regulations:
While in their residence hall, students must adhere to an open-door policy when socializing, meaning that doors will have to be completely open during visiting hours. No room visitation with closed doors is allowed. Students may not invite anyone not connected with the Young Writers Workshop onto their floor or into their room at any time for any reason. At 10 p.m., staff will check each room to be sure students are ready for lights-out and will have students lock their residence hall rooms. University police will lock all outside residence hall doors at 11 nightly. No students are allowed outside the residence hall after 11 p.m.
Once students have returned to the residence hall for the evening, they may not leave their floor or the residence hall itself. There can never be more than two students (designated roommates) sleeping in a room. Any problems or concerns at any time must be communicated to the staff.
Students will become acquainted with the staff’s room location and nighttime emergency procedures on the first day of camp.

Travel arrangements to and from campus must be made by the student and/or parent. UNCW does not have residence hall space or adult supervision available prior to check-in or following checkout. Early arrivals or late stay-overs may make arrangements in advance with one of the many nearby hotel/motel options in Wilmington.

c) If a Young Writers Workshop student does not adhere to the workshop procedures and regulations, his or her parent will be called and appropriate actions taken. If it is deemed necessary to expel a student from the Young Writers Workshop, no refund or partial refund will be granted.
If a student is expelled, his or her participation in all activities will cease immediately, and parents will be required to make arrangements for their child to leave the Young Writers Workshop and UNCW as quickly as possible.

III.  CELL PHONE AND LAPTOP POLICY
Young Writers Workshop participants are permitted to bring cell phones and laptops, but their use will be restricted in order to minimize distractions and promote a sense of community among our young writers. Students will be expected to exercise good judgment regarding appropriate cell phone use. Camp administrators may confiscate the cell phones of students who fail to demonstrate a mature attitude regarding cell phone use. Students who have lost their cell phone privileges will be allowed to make calls during certain hours daily. Cell phone numbers will be collected by camp coordinators at check-in.

IV.  CANCELLATION POLICY
In the event of cancellation, a $50 fee will be withheld from your refund. No refunds will be granted after June 28.

V.  EMERGENCY INFORMATION
a) Students may be contacted during business hours (8 a.m.-5 p.m.) by calling the UNCW Creative Writing Department at 910-962-7063, or the Office of Public Service and Continuing Studies at 910-962-3546. Callers should state the student’s name and provide a phone number and time at which the student can return the call. We will be able to tell you where the student is at the time of your call and what time he or she will be able to return your call. We will then get your message to the student and staff.

If you need to reach a student between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m., call the UNCW University Police at 910-962-2222. State the student’s name, the name of the camp (Young Writers Workshop), the residence hall (Honors House), and the phone number where you can be reached.

b) In case of an injury or illness that requires treatment other than application of basic first aid, the student will be treated appropriately and taken to the nearest medical facility for attention. Parent(s) will be contacted via the phone numbers listed on the student’s emergency form. Actions will be taken according to parental wishes. A formal accident/illness report will be filed with the UNCW Safety Office. UNCW does not carry accident insurance for Young Writers Workshop students.

VI. GENERAL INFORMATION

a) If a student must leave the camp for any reason, no refund of any type may be issued.

b) It is advisable to leave valuable items such as jewelry at home. Items such as watches, cameras, and digital recorders are your responsibility at all times. Students must lock room doors everyday upon leaving dorm.

Frequently Asked Questions

What happens in the writing workshop?

In a creative writing workshop, you will share a piece of your original writing (poem, short story, or personal essay) with a group of your peers and a workshop leaders, all of whom will read your work and give you written and verbal feedback. The workshop process is a great learning experience from both sides: You will gain insight not only from the comments you receive about your own work, but also from reading and commenting on other students’ work.

What is proper workshop etiquette?

The workshop has simple rules that must be followed. When your work is up for discussion, come prepared to listen with an open mind. Otherwise, come prepared to talk. You don’t need to wait to be called on, but please speak one at a time. Be honest, but remember: Give your positive comments before the “negative” (constructive) ones. Remember, the purpose of workshop is to help the author make his or her piece stronger, not to make anyone feel bad about his or her writing.

How do I participate?

There are two ways you’ll participate in the workshop: as a writer and a reader. As a writer, you’ll listen to a discussion of your work and take notes on what is said. During this discussion, you aren’t allowed to talk, but at the end you may ask questions of your readers (such as asking them to clarify points of discussion that you found confusing).

Each workshop is about giving and getting helpful comments and contributing to a supportive environment in which all writers learn more about their craft. As a reader, you’ll need to read the manuscripts assigned for workshop each day—you can’t give useful feedback if you are unfamiliar with the works to be discussed. Prepare positive comments and suggestions before you go into the workshop, so you’ll provide the author a helpful critique of his/her manuscript. Treat each other respectfully, and remember that the discussion is always about the writing, not the writer. If you follow this rule as reader and writer, the workshop will run smoothly.

What do I say?
Tell the workshop group what appeals to you as an artist. Offer suggestions for improvement. Be specific; cite examples from the work. Generic comments such as “I like it” or “I don’t think it works” aren’t helpful.

These comments, though, are appropriate and useful:
• “I like your main character. The details about her on page five are clear and realistic.”
• “In your poem, I have trouble seeing the image in the first line. More visual details there would draw me into the poem right away.”

What are some kinds of comments I can make?
Below are a few aspects of writing that often receive comments in workshops:
• Word choice
• Characters (Are they realistic? Are they consistent? Do you like them as people?)
• Metaphor/Imagery
• Theme (Does the story/poem have a larger meaning?)
• Setting (Can you “see” the setting?)
• Description (of character, setting, action)
• Line breaks (in poetry)
• Dialogue (Is it realistic, or does it sound contrived—written, not spoken?)

Is the workshop scary?
Workshops should be exciting and inspiring, not scary. The UNCW Young Writers Workshop leaders have been trained in facilitating workshops and will cover the rules and expectations with everyone on the first day. The workshop should foster an environment in which writers feel free to share their stories and poems without fear, and our leaders will work to make this possible. If you have questions or concerns about the workshops, feel free to talk to your workshop leader or any other camp counselor. We want the workshops to be a positive experience for everyone—writers and readers alike.
