UNCW Engagement Days

UNCW faculty, staff and students building stronger and more meaningful relationships with nonprofit organizations

Hunger and Environmental Issues

10:30 a.m. – 3:00 p.m.
Thursday, April 23rd
Azalea Coast Ballrooms A & B

Faculty Networking and Student Showcase Opportunity

On Thursday, April 23rd, QENO, OSLE, the Career Center, and ETEAL will be hosting an Engagement Day event with panels and presentations for faculty, staff, students, and nonprofit organizations. As part of the event, there will be a showcase of student research, internships, and other projects in community engagement focused on addressing Environmental Issues and/or Hunger/Food Security. This is an excellent opportunity for students and faculty mentors to not only present their work to nonprofit representatives, but also to build relationships with these nonprofits and engage in collaborative discussions.

The Networking Session is an opportunity for Faculty to discuss possible research collaborations, their students’ past, present, and future applied learning projects, potential grant collaborations, and all of the engaging work that you’re a part of. The student showcase is also a great chance for students and their faculty mentors to showcase their engagement efforts, their work with the community, and their ongoing research to local nonprofit representatives.

If you know any students who have a poster or other display and would be interested in showcasing their community engagement work for faculty, staff, students, and nonprofits, please let us know at ETEAL@uncw.edu!

This is the final of the Engagement Day events that will be happening this semester! Each Engagement Day so far has featured networking opportunities for faculty and nonprofits operating in the area, a student work showcase, panels and discussions led by faculty and nonprofit representatives, and much, much more.
