Feast Down East’s annual Local Food Conference brings together all those in our community who are involved in supporting and growing the local food system of southeastern NC. This includes farmers and fishermen, food retailers and establishments, foodies, advocates & community leaders. The purpose of the conference is to strengthen the activities of these groups and the relationships between them. The 2018 Local Food Conference is co-presented by the Cape Fear Food Council, a grassroots collaboration working toward a stronger, more equitable food system in our region.

Cost:
$20 for farmers / students
$35 for general public

Conference registration includes locally-sourced breakfast & lunch!

Session Topics:
- Production & Processing
- Consumer Access
- Distribution
- Waste Reduction

Space is limited, so register today: www.FeastDownEast.org/local-food-conference